Binkley Takes Campaign Headquarters on the Road for "49 for the 49th"

Republican candidate for governor John Binkley will spend the last 49 hours of his campaign on the road through the 49th State talking with the voters. Beginning at 8:00 a.m. Sunday and ending at 9:00 a.m. Tuesday. Binkley will engage in a non-stop, around-the-clock campaign blitz called "49 for the 49th."

"I want to share my energy, experience and message with the people of Alaska," Binkley said. "That's why I'm taking my campaign headquarters on the road and to the voters – it's the same approach I've been using for months and I'm excited to finish strong."

Binkley added that he wants to meet with as many Alaskans as he can right up to Election Day. Part of the "49 for the 49th" tour will be aboard the Binkley Bus where volunteers, supporters and members of the media will be welcomed.

The final schedule of events will be posted soon on the campaign website at: www.binkley06.com

Members of the media who wish to cover this uniquely Alaskan event by riding on the bus or meeting John at any of the various stops can contact Russ Kelly, Press Secretary 223-3694.
